Harriman Vs. Rockefeller

By Marquis Childs

ALBANY, N.Y. -- A Harriman versus a Rockefeller -- that is the of New York this fall.

Governor Averell Harriman, a Democrat, is running for reelection, and the most likely Republican opponent at the moment is Nelson Rockefeller. One of the five grandsons of old John D., Nelson has become more deeply involved in public life than any of his brothers. He has smelled the smoke of political battle, and if the professional politicians who run the Republican party give him even grudging encouragement, he seems likely to enter the race.

The Harriman fortune was built on railroads, the Rockefellers' on oil. In the recent Fortune magazine appraisal of American wealth, each man was listed with a net worth of $100,000,000. This is, of course, only a guess, since no balance sheets were available and with that kind of money even the individual himself would find it hard to reach an exact figure.

It could only happen in New York State where the concentration of wealth is so great. In this state, too, there is a tradition of disinterested public service which in the past has helped to induce men of position and means such as Charles Evans Hughes and Franklin D. Roosevelt to contest with the professional politicians.

On Harriman's side, no doubts exist. He is rarin' to go, determined to win re-election by a big majority. With a large majority, giving him a stronger grip on the Democratic organization in New York, he would be a figure to be reckoned with in the choice of a Democratic candidate for President

Although he will be 67 shortly after the election in November, a visitor does not talk with Harriman for long without realizing that he still puts himself in the national picture. In 1952, before he had run for an elective office, and again in '56 when he had been Governor for two years, Harriman was out for the Presidential nomination.

He has today a sure political touch and a shrewd, determined drive that would be remarkable in a man who had spent his life seeking elective office. This is an extraordinary transformation -- from the talented and wealthy amateur holding a series of important appointive offices to the pro occupying the Governor's chair in his own right.

One reason the politicians who run the Democratic party in the state gave Harriman, the amateur, an opportunity in 1954 to run for Governor was because the chances seemed so slim. Thomas E. Dewey, retiring to go into a lucrative law practice, had built up a supposedly strong Republican organization. And Dewey had pressured Senator Irving M. Ives, a successful vote-getter with some labor support, into taking the Republican nomination.

The professionals laughed when, in the words of that advertisement of long ago, Harriman sat down at the piano. But he put on a tremendously hard campaign, spending freely of his energies and his money. The Republicans made one blunder after another. And at the end of a long count Harriman had won by 11,000 votes out of nearly 5,000,000

Rockefeller is in a similar situation today. He has served with distinction in a series of appointive jobs under Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower. But to wield any influence in the party and the nation as an Eisenhower Republican, he believes that he must demonstrate his ability in practical pol-

Just as with Harriman in '54, he will get his chance only if the Republican pros think the tide is running against them. With the odds in their favor, they would pick one of their own, such as Leonard Hall, former Republican national chairman, who wants very much to run.

A private poll showed recently that Rockefeller could come closer than any other Republican possibility to defeating Harriman. So in a state where a party convention picks the candidates, Rockefeller, with A COMMUNITY CALENDAR Dewey's backing, may get the nod. And with the Harriman precedent, he could come from behind to do what the pros thought was impossible.

Potentially, therefore, with one well-known name out of a great wealth battling another well-known name, this is the most interesting political situation in the country.

WATER SPLASH DAMAGE

One aspect of high water which probably hasn't occurred to many people is the damage done by water thrown toward homes, cars, and plants by the wheels of passing trucks and busses. Such areas as the West Side have much water in the street even when there isn't a major flood.

Trucks and busses which are equipped with high exhaust pipes can barrel through this water at high speeds, and they do. The result is much damage to surrounding property.

A leading industrialist and property owner is one of those not happy about this situation and believes action should be taken to slow down these vehicles when deep water lies in the Avenue.

NOT TO THE MOON

Though there is much talk about a trip to the moon, or around it, there are some scientists who believe that the moon will not be the object of our first air space trip. They believe its gravitation is too strong for easy landing and taking off and that there is little evidence of atmosphere.

We are more apt to visit Deimos or Phobos, moons of Mars, according to some of our space thinkers.

EMPLOYMENT FOR REST

Republican Assemblyman Kepler Davis from Forest county suggests that unemployed men be put to work building road rests along our highways. He says this might be the answer to the unemployment problem in rural areas.

We do not question the value of road rests, but we do doubt if they would employ very many men for many weeks. And we do suspect there are some far more important projects that could be readied by alert communities, and the state.

Assemblyman Davis made the suggestion in the Forest Press, partly owned by him, and through which he finds a means of weekly expression by way of a column, But we see no mention in this column concerning plans for a Tionesta. sewage plant, which Tionesta has been told to build, and which would be far more valuable to our good health than road side rests. It also might provide far more hours of work for those rural unemployed about which Assemblyman Davis suddenly is so concerned.

ANOTHER ANSWER

The United Electridal, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE) write us that they have the answer to job security. They suggest a shorter work week with the same weekly pay. They will ask this of General Electric, Westinghouse, and Sylvania, which involves 60,000 men.

They also will ask for severance pay allowances for members who are permanently laid off.

Under their plan those who now work 40 hours a week would be working 35 hours by September, 1959, and those working 37-1/2 hours would be working 32-1/2 hours. But they would be paid the same as they are for the longer

The UE slaps down profit sharing as a gimmick that benefits the company only, allowing it to give little while collecting much through the lack of wage increases.

It argues that its shorter work week will put many more men to work. In Sylvania it claims that 2,700 men would be rehired within

LEWIS E. STARK

New district traffic superintendent in Bell Telephone Company's Warren office is Lewis E. Stark. He has been transferred here from North Philadelphia.

We question these figures. We believe the shorter work week is with us, though we haven't done much about it. Actually, modernization if fully used would make the shorter week very possible and we believe most well equipped plants could be working thirty hours right now if they chose. But production would be the same, and may be greater, thus precluding the need for more help.

The Chamber of Commerce committee's move supports the recommendation of the Parking Authority, which states the project can be done for about $7,000. This body further says the cost would be repaid in less than four years through revenue from 18 additional parking

Plans are also being considered to make Second one-way, but the committee feels its plan would cause less traffic congestion.

YOUR RIVER TODAY...

The river this morning read 5.6 feet on the gauge in Warren. This is about 2.1 feet higher than one week plenishing is proceeding.

The flood danger still is very much with us, and in fact is greater than a week ago. The reason being that we have a higher river.

The greatest danger as we see it will be in the next two weeks. There still is enough snow in the woods to thoroughly dampen the ground. This means that hard rain has no place to go but down the slopes.

The two factors which will determine whether or not we have a flood now are the amount of rain and the height of the river when the rain starts. Three days of hard rain over a large upstream area can easily bring the river up seven to nine feet above the level at which it flowed when the rains began.

If we have intermittent rains and easy thaws there is no danger. Rain, saturated ground, and river flowing around eight or nine feet at the start can mean trouble. Judge accordingly as the days go by.

Talk About Taxes

BOOKMOBILE POSSIBLE WITH NO TAX INCREASE

Those who for years have believed the rural areas of Warren county deserve better library service, and that a bookmobile would help provide it, as has been the case in progressive states, and even some Pennsylvania counties, will be interested, but not encouraged, by our prediction that such a service could be started this year with no tax increase.

In fact, it will not surprise us if the commissioners are so flush that they will reduce the tax millage. And if added services to the people are not provided, a decrease may be possible in coming years.

With the help of the state we doubt if it would take more than a third of a mill to finance a bookmobile. The state would provide another $4,000, and we would have $15,000 for such a service. All this and still some tax cut!

ARE YOU READY?

It is the time of year when a form which goes to the government is nearly due and as usual the Internal Revenue Service is sending out many convenient suggestions to help you in this task. Here are a few:

Self employed lawyers, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths, and optometrists now are subject to selfemployment tax, and must pay if they made $400 or more a year since 1955. In 1957 the tax was 3-3/8 per cent of an income up to $4,200.

If you worked for more than one employer during 1957, be sure to attach copies of all your Form W-2's (withholding tax certificates) to your return. Also be sure you have not overpaid your social security tax for the year. The maximum social security is $94.50, and you can claim a refund if you topped it.

A chief concern of the Pittsburgh office, where your report goes, is the slow filing this year. Over 1,600, 000 returns are expected, but only 330,000 have been received. This is 60,000 behind the pace of last year. Although the office is equipped to process 40,000 returns daily, it is receiving them at the rate of only 20,000. Any refunds you may have will be speeded up if you file when the office is not busy, and obviously it will be rushed by a late pile-up this year.

Don't staple or pin checks and other documents to the short, cardforms 1040A being used this year. These cards are being used because they make machine processing possible. This cannot be done if the cards are attached to other paper, and the damage done also may make it difficult to process them. Such cards naturally will come under very close scrutiny.

Regardless of how much your children earn, if they are undernineteen or can be classified as students you can claim them as full dependents. But don't forget, the childor student still must file a return. Those earning less than $600 have a refund coming. And those earning over $600 must file even though they are claimed as dependents.

You are responsible for the accuracy of your return. It makes no difference who prepares it, the taxpayer or taxpayers signing the form are responsible. Professional help is encouraged and should be of great help, but whether you receive it from an accountant or by telephone from a government agent, you are the one accountable.

And be very cautious about availing yourself of the services provided by itinerant tax advisers who set up shop for a short time at this time of year. Some promise big refunds which won't hold up, most of them are incompetent, and few can be found when the taxpayer wants to check with them later.

Reuther Unloved By Conservatives

By Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON. -- Chairman John McClellan of the Senate rackets committee is going around these days with that "weaned-on-apickle" look that Alice Longworth once attributed to Calvin Coolidge. position.

After a smashing start with exsters Union, McClellan has been trapped into making an investigation of the long-drawn-out Kohler strike in Wisconsin. Already the hearings give promise of being as bitter, as prolonged and as shot with politics as that famous situa-

What has happened is that the four Republicans on the evenly divided committee were determined to pull their pet hate among Democratic labor leaders, Walter Reuther of the United Automobile Workers Union, into the aura of corruption created by the Teamsters story. Teamster President Dave Beck who with his son, Dave Jr., has now been convicted of larceny, is a Republican, and the Teamsters, far more than most unions, leaned to the GOP.

The committee Republicans -Senators Irving M. Ives, Barry M. Goldwater, Karl E. Mundt and Carl T. Curtis -- seemed to feel it was their turn. Since Reuther runs his union well and is notoriously uninterested in getting rich, the Kohler strike offered the best avenue of approach.

That extra dollop of bitterness in McClellan's cup is no doubt caused by the fact that, in trying to keep the hearings on the rails, he is put in the position of appearing to help Reuther. Like most conservatives, he really dislikes him and is deeply suspicious of his flow of economic and social ideas. These ideas are perhaps largely responsible for Reuther's unquestioned place as the No. 1 whipping boy of the labor movement. He probably suffers from the legacy of early violence in his union and generally in the CIO, which he formerly headed. But there is the personal element also -- "The Redhead" has a curious power to infuriate his op-

Many men in business and politics osure of corruption in the Team- will discuss rationally such New Deal Democrats as Al Hayes of the Machinists, President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, David Dubinsky of the Garment Workers and George Harrison of the Railroad Workers. But mention Reuther and they foam at the mouth.

McClellan may sympathize with them. But he knows, too, that a trial examiner of the National Labor Relations Board found the Kohler Company guilty of unfair labor practices last October after a lengthy. and painstaking investigation. The board itself has not acted.

The trouble another regulatory agency -- the Federal Communications Commission -- is having in trying to explain why it overruled its trial examiner is now on the front pages. Even if it were not, the NLRB, by firmly established practice, is compelled to treat with respect the findings of its examiners, especially in connection with the credibility of witnesses.

The present hearings are, of course, heating up further the hot spot on which the Eisenhower-appointed NLRB now stands with respect to the Kohler situation.

It is widely believed that the young committee counsel, Robert Kennedy, entertains notions that he might be able to resolve the Kohler-UAW impasse. The hard-bitten Mc-Clellan seems instead to feel that nobody is going to win very much in this one, including the Senators on the committee whose undignified struggles with each other over procedure have adversely affected the climate in which they are operating. The recession hasn't done the committee any good, either; labor probes and legislation flourish best in a period during full employment.

But the simple device of charging personal expenses to their own companies, these taxpayers can practice two kinds of tax evasion: The money becomes tax-free income for the individuals. And the company can deduct it as a business cost, thus cutting its taxes.

Expense accounts thus open up almost unlimited possibilities.

Take this case of a Kentucky paint and varnish manufacturer.

He might never have been caught if he had not filed a claim for a tax refund. A Revenue agent sent to investigate found that -- far from deserving a refund -- he had charged thousands of dollars of personal ly proclaimed the "largest comexpenses to his company over a three-year span.

Some taxpayers show great cunning in concealing personal expenses charged to their companies.

Revenue agents recently investigated a family firm after a large sum showed up on its books for "water purification" experiments. They found the money was used to build a swimming pool near the family's summer home.

Another businessman, whose hobby was collecting rare stamps, had his company buy $2,700 worth to add to his collection -- and charge them to the firm's "postage" account.

The revenue loss from this sort of tax cheating may not be as important as the damage it does to the whole structure of taxpayer honesty and morale -- on which our "voluntary" tax system de-

Slants On Kinzua Dam

Editor, Warren Observer Warren, Pennsylvania

Dear Sir:

Your two recent issues in favor of the Kinzua Dam have been very refreshing after reading the front page in the daily paper against its construction.

The opposition first blamed the selfish interests of the Pittsburgh industrialists as pushing the dam; now it is the hydro-electric interests. I wonder if there are not other selfish interests who are using the Indians and the people of Kinzua as a smoke screen to hide their con-

One of the points used by the opposition was the condition of the concrete at the dam on the Clarion River. There are many reasons why concrete fails. One improper mix can cause a failure of that batch. It is not uncommon to have newly laid stretches of concrete break down in several years. Neither the Armynor the Highway Engineers can be blamed since the actual work was done by contractors. Unless the dam were washed out, it could not be called a failure. If concrete were perfect, there would be no need of maintenance crews for our highways.

One failure the opposition missed was the dam at Austin, Pa. It was built by the paper company as a reservoir. I was attending the Pennsylvania State University Forestry School at the time of the flood. We were taking a course in dam construction, and had received a copy of the report made by the engineers who investigated the failure. One of the most important causes was that a heavy wire screen, a foot or a foot and a half high, was placed across the top of the dam to prevent the fish from being washed downstream. After several years, it became clogged with leaves and driftwood. The next high water raised the head of water nearly a foot which produced more pressure than the dam could stand. It opened like a gate downstream. The other fault was wedge) was placed downstream instead of upstream where the weight of the water would have helped to

The last dam mentioned was the one at Johnstown, Pa., which caused the flood on May 31, 1889. According to the Scientific American Encyclopedia, it was an earthen dam built to hold back the waters of Conemaugh Lake. Had it been built by Army Engineers, it would have had sufficient spillway and tunnels to prevent the flood. In a recent article, Mr. Morrison stated that

In two years after it was built, boats of all types, including speed boats, were making use of it. The lake is but eight miles long.

There is no reason why the Kinzua dam could not be made one of the finest fishing spots in the state. The river already has trout, walleyes, muskies and bass. It would provide even better fish since it would be deep enough to have cold water in the hot summer months. It would also relieve the pressure on the other streams.

Another argument used against the dam was the formation of mud flats when the flood water subsided. As an example of what actually does happen, let us consider the island. Those in the Allegheny and other rivers are covered with soil. They are under water only at flood stage, and in every case are covered with vegetation and trees. It is logical to assume the same will happen at the dam because flood waters wash away fertile soil and seeds along the Eleven Commandments of our business....

A CUSTOMER . . .

is the most important person in any business.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is not dependent on us—we are dependent on him.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is not an interruption of our work—he is the purpose of it.

A CUSTOMER . . .

does us a favor when he calls—we are not doing him a favor by serving him.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is a part of our business—not an outsider.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is not a cold statistic—he is a flesh and blood human being with feelings and emotions like our own.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is not someone to argue or match wits with.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is a person who brings us his wants—it is our job to fill those wants.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is deserving of the most courteous and attentive treatment we can give him.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is the fellow that makes it possible to pay your salary whether you are a truck driver, plant employee, office employee, salesman or manager.

A CUSTOMER . . .

is the life-blood of this and every other business.

Sincerely

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

AST OF THE STAND-UPCOMICS

This has not been a good year or the stand-up comic. In fact, the comic who stands just behind the footlights and tosses naked jokes at about. On Sunday, there were jokes years -- all extion to just about all the rules. Hope's intermitawful critical awe-inspiring ratings anyway.

at the outset of last Sunday's show. time together in a duet "We Have would last. It used to be the standard opening joke for the second show of all the radio programs and I thought it had been permanently retired from active competition.

Just the same I enjoyed that opening monologue of Hope's, partly because there are so few of those opening monologues any more, partly because there were some darned good jokes in it, partly to catch up on current affairs. If Hope hasn't got a joke about it, it never happened or it isn't worth bothering the audience has about John Foster Dulles, the exbeen quietly going president of Venezuela, the Academy into eclipse for Awards, Bing Crosby's expected the last couple of fatherhood, and horror movies. ("Remember a few years ago when cept Bob Hope, Boris Karloff used to scare us away who is an excep-from movies. Now, HE'S afraid to

His advertised quently taken an guests were Anita Ekberg, the statuesque Swedish lady, and Natalie lambasting and consistently run up Wood and Robert Wagner, the newlyweds from the movies. His unadver-"Here I'm doing my second show tised guest was Bing Crosby and I for Johnson Motors -- and they must say the two old pros, Crosby said I wouldn't last," he declared and Hope, seemed to have a great Frankly, I didn't think that joke Nothing In Common" and I enjoyed it as much as they did.

I have never seen Miss Natalie Wood, the delight of the teenage set, in a movie so it was instructive to catch up with her on television. In a single sketch she played roughly six different roles, ranging from Marlon Brando to a teenage movie fan. Later she and Hope did a wild version of "Two Sleepy People." Energy, this girl has got and, I think, some talent, too.

"Sweden is famous for its two national dishes. One of them is smorgasbord. The other is with us tonight." Miss Ekberg's chief reason for being on the show was to give Mr. Hope a chance to pull that joke which vastly entertained me. Altogether I found the Hope show a lot of fun and I haven't always. With so few comedians around I feel we ought to be extra kind to the few survivors, those whooping cranes who are keeping the species

Incidentally, I don't know who is doing the publicity for Robert Hall, the clothing people, but whoever he is he deserves a raise. He got a Robert Hall joke on the Steve Allen show and another one on the Hope show which is an awful lot of free advertising for one evening.

The latest "See It Now" was a fairly thorough exploration of the question of statehood for Alaska and Hawaii. While remaining neutral within the meaning of the law, Edward R. Murrow's sympathies seemed pretty much on the side of statehood for the two territories and, after listening to a couple of the people who opposed statehood, so were mine. One character, Sen. George Malone of Nevada, did a particularly good job of stirring up sympathy for Alaska and Hawaii by opposing statehood for the two territories with a sort of venomous intrasigeance which was enormously helpful to the other side.

Actually, unless you happen to be awfully interested in the two territories, this was one of the lesser "See It Now" programs. When Mr. Murrow showed a couple of young homesteaders in Alaska talking about the advantages of living in their wild territory, the program had great momentum and enthusiasm. But it soon bogged down into set speeches delivered directly to the camera by politicians and lobbyists, each with his special point of view. This got a little dull. At the end Mr. Murrow pointed out that the general public favored statehood for both territories by large

The big change on American production lines next year will be to small models. General Motors and We don't consider anyone involved Ford have plans for small cars, selling for about $1600 to $1800, and with four cylinders. The Ford will be along the lines of the 1958 Thunderbird, and with 100 hp. It will be produced in Cleveland.

Child Welfare Program For Warren Discussed

has been issued by Secretary of Agnes Hartman, Bureau of Chil-Welfare Harry Shapiro in regard to dren's Services; and Eleanor Meca meeting held in hisHarrisburgoffice March 4 with the Warren County Services; standing--Gerald Newton, Commissioners. The session was held at the suggestion of the Secretary who wrote to the Commissioners asking for the opportunity to discuss with them ways and means of developing the child welfare program in Warren County, to which the state contributes under its reimbursement program.)

The conclusions drawn: The problem of the child care program in Warren County was discussed with the County Commissioners and other persons present. The Commissioners indicated their desire to develop a program in the county which has meaning for children. They pointed out the fact that there is a private agency which is now carrying out most, if not all, of the program; that the interest of these people must be recognized and maintained; and that was agreed to. The Commissioners agreed to engage qualified personnel if they could be found and the department agreed to lend their assistance in this respect.

It was agreed that an advisory council should be set up which would be representative of the people in the whole community who have an interest in child care or in welfare programs, but that preliminarily, it would be wise to set up a meeting with representatives of all organizations and agencies interested in children to discuss the objectives and methods of securing those objectives before the organization of an advisory council.

It was also agreed that it would be helpful in order to procure personnel, that Civil Service status in the child care program be established. The Welfare Department pointed out that under those circumstances federal funds could be used and the program in Warren County for children would not be affected by failure of the Legislature to appropriate sufficient monies. It was agreed that the advisory council would be appointed as soon as possible and that a representative of the department would attend the first meeting, to outline the purposes of the program, and to discuss the specific problems and needs in Warren County as the department

The Secretary stated that if these steps were taken the participation of the department in the program would be recommended on the basis of the fair share formula and that under those circumstances the percentage of the state's contribution to Warren County for its program would be the same as the percentage given in other counties.

RECORD BUCK KILL IN 1957 FIGURES

The deer kill may have set a it compares well with most seasons lose with that fast trigger? record this past season, at least for bucks. The buck count was 49,254, and the antlerless total was 55,862, a total kill of 105,116. The year before it was 41,921.

Of these, 1,358 deer were killed during the archery season. The archery kill in 1956 was 224.

The deer kill was one of the heaviest ever made. It is exceeded only by 1938, 1940, and 1949, which read 171,662, 186,575, and 130,723, respectively.

The antlerless deer total was higher than most previous seasons, except six others. The biggest ever was 1938 when 171,662 were shot.

Our unofficial guess is that the buck kill was the heaviest in the history of the state. The closest figure to the 49,254 is that of 1939, which followed a closed season on bucks. The kill that year was 49,106.

We are killing more, but not enough to assure better size. And those leaner totals included the kind of antlers a hunter was proud to haul from the woods and display in his den.

The only small game kill to exceed the previous season were the figures for raccoons, 139,397, an increase of ten thousand; wild turkeys, 16,156, up from 14,481; pheasants, 465,955, up about nine thousand; quail, 12,057, up from 10,417; and doves, 39,699, up from 24,838.

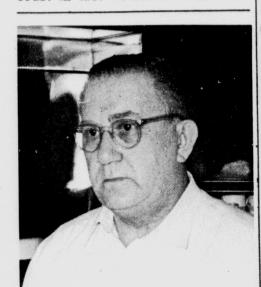

The boom-booms knocked over 1,455,862 rabbits, which was about 100,000 less than 1956. The squir-100,000 less than 1750. The rels blasted from tree tops added rels blasted from tree tops added 1500.000 less. up to 728,342, about 200,000 less.

The waterfowl bag also went down from 1956. The waterfront gunners shot 64,625 birds. The year before they got 77,616.

The woodchuck marksmen also had less luck. They popped over 311,497 of the whistlers, which was about 14,500 less than in 1956.

The grouse hunters got 41,694 of their difficult targets, which compares well with some seasons, but is far below most, including 1956 when they shot 49,847.

We are not so interested in comparing the figures with 1956 as we are with the average seasons of the past. The rabbit total is far below the average for this state and rates with some of the lowest in the records. In fact we believe there have
